

5

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

10 An analytical element (typically DNA chip) composed of a solid carrier and a group of nucleotide derivatives or their analogues fixed to the solid carrier can be produced by bringing nucleotide derivatives or the analogues having an alkyne group at one terminal into contact with a zero-valent metal film (e.g., silver metal film or copper metal film) placed on the solid carrier.